

Financial education should be included as a mandatory subject in schools to prepare students for managing money effectively.

To what extent do you agree or disagree?

In this essay I will explore why I completely agree with this opinion that financial education ought to be a compulsory subject on schools as a means of learning fruitful money management.

The role of education extends beyond the acquisition of traditional academic knowledge, reaching into the practical realm of essential life skills. One such critical skill is financial literacy. In the contemporary landscape, where financial decisions intricately shape individual destinies, the question of whether financial education should be compulsory in schools becomes paramount. This essay will delve into the rationale behind advocating for the inclusion of financial education as a mandatory subject, contending that such a measure is indispensable for equipping students with the tools to navigate the complexities of managing money effectively.

Financial education provides pupils with the knowledge of how to be more responsible. In today's world, there are many ~~decentive-deceptive~~ and unreal ~~needs-wants~~ which ~~make-tempt~~ people ~~into~~ spending inessential amounts of money on them, so there is an increasing demand to teach them how to ~~confront-resist~~ these temptations to meet real needs instead. They learn how to take ~~the~~ responsibility ~~of-for~~ their financial choices. Many students, for instance, are fashion victims because of the impact of social media and the ~~advertisement-advertisement~~ of consumerism, so showing them how to manage their pocket money and the consequences of their financial choices is helpful and informative for their future life.

Another merit of presenting financial ~~courese-courses~~ helps students ~~to-find-understand~~ how money works. Through these lessons, they will learn ~~the value of~~ money ~~worths~~ through these courses, and doing so teach ~~es~~ them ~~accurate-to~~ response ~~accurately~~ to their financial needs and positions. For example, when ~~foriegn-foreign collage-college~~ students ~~learned-learn about~~ money management during their school, they face ~~less-fewer~~ financial problems at ~~the~~ ~~peresent-present~~, while living in another country and ~~handle-handling~~ their ~~limmited-limited~~ resources.

In conclusion, I firmly believe in the importance of ~~helding-including~~ financial education as a mandatory subjects in schools to prepare them ~~managing-to manage~~ money effectively ~~as-it~~ makes students more responsible and more familiar with the ~~worth-value~~ of money.

Commented [or1]: Seems OK; however, it is so simple and try to add some complex vocabulary as well. Moreover, Introductory paragraph must have an introduction sentence, which is a paraphrase of the question and setting the scene.

Commented [or2]: Consider the use of Band 8-9 vocabulary and structure if you aim higher.

Dear Candidate,

Your writing was good at times; however, if you aim higher, you need to take the mentioned points seriously.

Here is a breakdown of your score based on IELTS Criteria:

1. Task Response (TR): The essay effectively addresses the prompt, expressing a clear opinion and providing relevant reasons.
2. Coherence and Cohesion (CC): The essay is generally well-organized, with a clear introduction, body paragraphs, and conclusion. However, some sentence structures could be refined for better flow. You may also need to use more Cohesive devices in order to gain more score in CC.
3. Lexical Resource (LR): There are instances of incorrect word choices and minor grammatical errors. Consider using more precise vocabulary and refining sentence structures.
4. Grammatical Range and Accuracy (GRA): Some grammatical errors and awkward sentence structures are present. Review and revise to improve grammatical accuracy.
5. Overall Comment: The essay demonstrates a good understanding of the topic, but improvements in vocabulary and grammar would enhance its overall quality. Consider refining sentence structures for a more polished presentation.
